ICE FAMILY FLOUR—40 BLS BANNER
its flour just received and for sale by
T. L. JEFFERSON

—Captain Burton, the traveler, speaking of Captain Speke, and other Nile explorers, says he hopes future travelers with similar objects will not return home "with such a maximum of cry and such a minimum of wool."

—Dragutin, the celebrated performer on the double bass, used to keep a large number of children's dolls at his lodgings for his amusement. When he traveled he usually took a black one with him, which he called his wife, and he used to dance to his carrying window when he passed through any little village.

—Another proof of the growing feeling in France against capital punishment was given the other day at Amiens, where a jury returned a verdict of guilty, with extenuating circumstances, against a man convicted of having committed a murder in his own father, three attempted murders of a less unnatural dye, and of having perpetrated five incendiary fires.

—Prices are higher by a hundred per cent. in India than they were before. The silver rupee, worth only a few cents in the United States, is now worth twenty-five cents in England. Articles of Indian dress there cost five times as much as they do at home. And yet India is draining Europe of specie and keeps it all. A piece of gold appears to be as bad as a plethora of paper.

—On the 8th ultimo, William Harvey, a composer, undertook for a wage of £1 to swim across the Thames, from Milbank to Lambeth, within twelve minutes, and got in the water for the purpose at 8 o'clock. Unfortunately he reached about two hundred feet from the shore, when he gave a loud shriek, and instantly sunk. The poor fellow, who, it is supposed, was seized with cramp, perished.

—St. Francis Victor Hugo, having dedicated to Gen. Garibaldi the 13th volume of his masterly translation of Shakespeare, has recently received from the Italian hero the following letter: My friend Victor Hugo, I have always a right to do what I like with my name, but they will never use it but for a good purpose. At all events, I can only accept your dedication as a vow that we make together for the liberty of our two countries, and for the alliance that might result from your illustrious name and mine. I am, Sir, your devoted friend, Garibaldi. Mons. Francis Victor Hugo, Guernsey.

—An English artist, Mr. Linnell, has just returned to Rome, after a very interesting but equally hazardous excursion in the mountain districts of the Abruzzi and Terra di Lavoro, most infested by brigands. He was accompanied by an experienced model, well known to artists there, named Antonio, himself a mountaineer; and, although frequently in the neighborhood, almost in sight of the formidable band, succeeded in tracking his way unhurt through the dangerous district. Mr. Linnell's journey lasted twenty-three days, including a trip to the province of Salerno; and the part of the country he traversed was infested by brigands was the immediate neighborhood of St. Germano, where the hills were tenanted by a band of about three hundred brigands, with flags and other pretensions to the honor of regular warfare.

—The Right Rev. Dr. David Anderson, Bishop of Rupert's Land, is on his way to England, with a view of placing the resignation of his diocese in the hands of the authorities at home. In 1849, on the formation of the Bishopric of Rupert's Land, alias the territory of the Hudson's Bay Company, he was nominated by Earl Grey, who was then Colonial Secretary, to be the first Bishop, and, during the fifteen years which have elapsed, has worked the vast diocese with singular energy, increasing the number of clergy from five to twenty, of whom five are natives. The diocese of Rupert's Land is 370,000 square miles in extent, with a population of 200,000. The gross annual income is £700, £400 of which is derived from the Colonial Bishopric Fund, and £300 from the Hudson's Bay Company.

—An interesting discovery has just been made at Angerville, in a property belonging to M. Berryer. A laborer in digging brought to light some coffin, in the form of an angel, containing the remains of a human skeleton reduced to dust. Several articles of value were likewise in the coffin. M. Berryer, unfortunately, was not at once apprised of the discovery, but succeeded in recovering a large bronze bowl, beautifully sculptured; the fragments of a silver basin, completely oxidized; a large chased gold ring, but wanting the stone which set it in; and a watch (this was a work of the Lower Empire) a very large horn comb, richly ornamented; some broken glass vessels; and a coin of the realm of the Emperor Gratian. This coffin, discovered in a tomb from a very ancient tomb, appears not to have been alone. M. Berryer has given orders to dig the ground all round, to discover whether it was not a burial place at the last period of Roman dominion in Gaul.

—The case of Levy v. Bartlett, heard in the Sheriff's Court, London, a few days ago, was an action for the recovery of the value of a dress, alleged to have been damaged by some paint in defendant's shop. It appeared that the plaintiff went to the shop of the defendant, a cheesemonger, and that the paint was applied to the newly-painted door-post. A shopman called, "Mind the paint." Thereupon she caused herself to be painted upon the outside. There was no written notice that the paint was poisonous. His honor censured the defendant, who was bound to keep his shop so that no harm could come to his customers entering for a lawful purpose. The plea that the plaintiff's crime was exceedingly large was a bad plea. His honor might as well have said, "follow the prevailing fashion. If a tradesman wishes to protect himself particularly, he ought to put up a notice, 'No ladies with large crinolines enter in this shop.'"

—A plaintiff, with costs, says the Saint Public of Lyons, on the subject of crinolines, which is worthy of attention. Those dresses, in fact, require three meters more material than the ordinary ones. As no less than twenty millions of ladies' dresses are made every year in France, the additional quantity used is sixty millions of meters, which, taken at the average price of two francs a meter, makes a sum of one hundred and twenty millions of francs. In addition, must be mentioned two extra petticoats required for those ample dresses, and the material for which costs one hundred and twenty millions more. The steel cages must be also taken into account, and they cannot be estimated at less than fifteen francs each, a further sum of one hundred and fifty millions must be added. These three sums together make a tribute of three hundred and ninety millions, or about one-fifth of the state Budget, paid to a ridiculous and inconvenient fashion.

—Multitudes have of late been crowding to the Hippodrome, at Paris, to see Blondin, or his counterpart—for the fact is more than doubtful of this being the real hero of Niagara—who, on a rope, at the height of the column of the Place Vendôme, cooks an omelet on a fire heated by his own hands, and performs some wonderful feats of agility, suspended in their air. Be this the real Blondin (said to be at his moment de departing the Viennese in their capital), or an impostor, it is not for us to say. There is no doubt of his wonderful powers in the air. It has been said that he is anxiously awaiting the permission of the Prefect of Police to have a rope suspended between the towers of Notre Dame and the Tour St. Jacques, over the Seine, in order to cook his omelet over the river, and there dispose of the empty egg-shells. The Emperor's government is, however, far too careful of the lives of its subjects to allow so hazardous an experiment, so that the good folks of Paris must remain content to look on, and they have already witnessed.

Battle Incidents of Scripture.

BY THE REV. EDWARD C. JONES, A. M.

The Amalekites triumphed.—Num. xiv. 45-48. The spies had returned to the camp of Israel, bringing an alarming account of the invincibility of the nations of Canaan, whom God designed them to exterminate. Two only of the deputed messengers encouraged the hosts of God, but their words were rebuffed and discredited. But rebellion and discontent are not to be put down by the dissuasive exhortations of rhetoric. The people would not be comforted or encouraged. They saw nothing before them but destruction, and bewailed the very enemies whom God had promised to give them.

Then came the assurance from Moses that none of that mighty army of adults should ever behold the promised land, save Caleb and Joshua, and the forestallment of their possible desertion, the spies who had brought up an evil report, but by the plague before the Lord. At sight of this there came a reaction of popular feeling and the men of war determined to venture out to attack the hosts of Canaan, contrary to the wish of Moses and of God. It was a sudden revulsion from cowardice to spasmodic bravery—an insane endeavor to force back the purpose of the Godhead. God had promised them Canaan, but the message of the spies had led them to mistrust that promise. They had made God a liar, and now would rashly compel Him to co-operate with their plans of sudden attack.

Moses dissuaded them from joining battle with those who must certainly vanquish them, but go they would in the self-conceit of those who think that Heaven must of necessity be on the side of the heavier force, and who forget the battle is not always with the stronger. To convince them that if they attacked the Amalekites they would certainly be slain outside of the circle of heavenly guardianship, Moses would not accompany them in this attack, and so the Lord's hand was against them, and they were slain on the plains of Moab.

They had made God a liar, and now would rashly compel Him to co-operate with their plans of sudden attack.
